PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 14 (Indiana) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 14 (Indiana) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

Volume

- I Number of Inhabitants
- II Characteristics of the Population

Succeeding volumes will cover the following subjects:

Census Tracts, Nativity and Parentage, Nonwhite Population by Race, Persons of Spanish Surname, Institutional Population, Differential Fertility, Labor Force Characteristics, Occupation, Industry, Income, Internal Migration, Education, Characteristics of Families and Households.

U. S. CENSUS OF HOUSING: 1950

Volume

- I General Characteristics
- II Nonfarm Housing Characteristics
- III Farm Housing Characteristics
- IV Residential Financing
- V Block Statistics

Housing statistics for census tracts are to be included in the Population reports on census tracts.

INDIANA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—The Territory of Indiana was organized from the western part of the Territory Northwest of the River Ohio in 1800, at which time it comprised nearly all of the present State of Indiana, together with an area now constituting Illinois, Wisconsin, northeastern Minnesota, and western Michigan. In 1802 an area now constituting the remainder of Michigan was added, and in 1802 and 1803 minor revisions of the eastern boundary took place. The area of the Territory was greatly reduced by the organization of Michigan Territory in 1805 and of Illinois Territory in 1809. In 1816, with the addition of a small strip of land along the northern boundary and the separation of an area in the Upper Peninsula, Indiana was admitted to the Union as the nineteenth State with boundaries as at present. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 3,934,224. The State has a land area of 36,205 square miles. In 1950, there was an average of 108.7 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 94.7 in 1940. Among the States, Indiana ranked twelfth in population and thirty-seventh in land area.

In 1820, the first year in which it was enumerated as a State in a Federal census, Indiana had a population of 147,178 (table 1). In 1950, 130 years later, its population was almost 27 times as large. Population growth was rapid between 1820 and 1900, with the 1900 population of 2,516,462, more than 17 times as large as the population in 1820. The intercensal rates of growth in the twentieth century have been more moderate than those for the nineteenth century. The most rapid rate of growth in the twentieth century occurred between 1940 and 1950, when an increase of 14.8 percent was recorded. The numerical increase of 506,428 over the 3,427,796 persons enumerated in 1940 was the largest in the history of the State.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The urban population of Indiana in 1950 comprised 2,357,196 persons, or 59.9 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 119 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of 7 urbanized areas entirely or partially within the State. Nearly three-fifths of the urban population was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Indiana comprised 1,577,028 persons, or 40.1 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 177,111 persons, or 11.2 percent, were living in 107 incorporated and 9 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusions of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Indiana consisted of the following components: (1) The 2,217,468 inhabitants of the 116 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; (2) the 10,763 inhabitants of the 3 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (3) 128,965 persons living outside incorporated urban places in the urban-fringe areas of the 7 urbanized areas entirely or partially within the State. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Indiana according to the old definition, the population of the first element comprised the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements—139,728—represents the gain in the urban population of Indiana which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1800 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population of Indiana rose from 862,689 in 1900 to 2,217,468 in 1950 (table 1). The most rapid rate of increase of the 50-year period came in the decade 1900 to 1910, when the urban population increased at the rate of 32.6 percent. The largest numerical increase came in the 10-year period ending in 1920, when the increase was 339,020. The numerical increase of 329,756 for the decade 1940 to 1950 represented a gain of 17.5 percent over the 1,887,712 persons living in urban territory in 1940. All but 1 of the 39 cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more shared in the increase of the urban population between 1940 and 1950, with the rates of increase ranging from 0.4 percent for Bedford to 89.4 percent for West Lafayette (table 4). In 1900 the two cities of 50,000 inhabitants or more accounted for somewhat less than one-tenth of the population of the State; by 1950 the nine cities of this size accounted for three-tenths of the population of the State (table 3). The proportion of the population of Indiana living in urban territory rose from 34.3 to 56.4 percent between 1900 and 1950.

Despite declines in the first three decades of the nineteenth century, the rural population of Indiana increased from 1,653,773 in 1900 to 1,716,756 in 1950 (table 1). The numerical increase of 176,672 between 1940 and 1950 was at the rate of 11.5 percent. Both the numerical increase and the rate of growth for the decade were the largest since those recorded for the decade 1860 to 1870. The proportion of the population of Indiana living in rural territory declined from 65.7 percent in 1900 to 43.6 percent in 1950.

Counties.—The counties in Indiana ranged in size from Ohio with a population of 4,223 to Marion with a population of 551,777 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, as in the previous decade, 74 of the 92 counties in Indiana increased in population and 18 lost population. Nine of the counties which lost population during the period 1940 to 1950 also had lost population in the earlier period. More than one-half of the population increase in the State was accounted for by Marion, Lake, St. Joseph, Allen, and Vanderburgh Counties, the five most populous counties in the State.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Indiana are the townships. The incorporated cities and towns form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate counties and minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. The unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 340-346, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 Indiana had 537 places incorporated as cities and towns and 12 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 2,534,710 persons living in the incorporated places, 317,242 were in the 121 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. The nine unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants accounted for 14,216 of the 24,979 persons living in unincorporated places. The incorporated places ranged in size from Shore Acres town with a population of 9 to Indianapolis city with a population of 427,173.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were four urbanized areas entirely within Indiana and three urbanized areas partially within the State. Of the 1,412,312 persons in Indiana living in urbanized areas, 869,541 were in the five central cities located in the State and 542,771 were in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas had 425,552 persons living in 31 incorporated places and 117,219 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

VII

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.

2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.

3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.

4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

2. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

3. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

4. The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

5. The fifth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

6. The sixth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are derived from the principles of relativity and the theory of the structure of the atom.

² Includes 128,995 persons in urban territory outside of urban places.

³ Includes population of area separated in 1816 and transferred to Michigan Territory in 1818.

Table 6.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 TO 1950

["Uninc." designates an unincorporated place. Figures for 1940 and 1930 not available for unincorporated places or places incorporated since Apr. 1, 1940. Minor civil division figures for 1940 and 1930 do not necessarily add to county totals. Boundary changes between 1940 and 1930 given in footnotes; for changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of 16th Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 340-346. Total population of a place located in 2 or more minor civil divisions appears in table 7.]
